Busy Life Suits Students

Student life at Lapel consisted of many activities. The month of October brought the Homecoming, the Powder Puff game, and the Halloween Carnival. Toward the end of the year came the prom and Godspell.

Those were just a few of the main events during the year. Throughout the year, students were constantly on the go. During the week, athletic practices and events, band practices, yearbook meetings, homework sessions, and working at part-time jobs were just some of the activities in which students participated. When the weekend rolled around, there were either basketball or football games, dates with your favorite mate, or occasionally a little time for relaxation.

The life of the students at Lapel was best described as "busy" this past year. Although students were usually occupied, they still found time to share their experiences with friends. With few complaints, student life at Lapel suited us just fine.

"E" for Encouragement

The student body at Lapel provided an important key for success for the athletic teams this year — encouragent. Led by the spirited cheerleaders, the students, Pep 1b, band, and faculty did their part to fire up the teams ore the Bulldogs faced competition in football and basketl games.

Always featured during the pep rallies were several cheers class yells. The class that showed the most enthusiasm yelled the loudest took possession of the spirit stick. The d supplied lively music, including the "Bulldog Beat" and school song, "On Lapel." A comical skit involving stute participation was originated by the cheerleaders for h pep session. The most exciting assembly of the students previous to the sectional games. Everyone from kinderten through twelfth grade showed his support for the ldogs in his own way as there were banners, signs, but, and the ever-popular tissue paper displayed in the gym on the students. ## Relaxed Learning

At intervals throughout the school year, performers can to Lapel to present programs in the fields of acting, magi motivation, dance, and hypnotics. The convocations prove to be both interesting and educational, as they entertaine and yet, at times, challenged the mind.

Not only did the student audience view the convos, be they also participated as they took part in the programs. The most popular and memorable of which was the hypnotizing several students, as their friends and classmates looked on amazement and often laughter. Another advantage to the convocations was that they interrupted class time and gar the students a break, while they also were learning expeiences.

The Best of Times

Preparations for the 1981 prom began way back at the end of the 79-80 school year and lasted right up until the day of the prom. But most people would probably say it was worth it.

The Edgewood Country Club was the site of the '81 prom. Hor d'oeuvre and cokes were served for refreshments. Memory booklets, key chains, and red and white roses were given as souvenirs to take home to help remember the elegant evening. The band, Just Friends, provided smooth, easy-listening music all night long.

The Sun Did Shine For The Homecoming

This year's second annual daytime Homecoming was a great success. The sun shone all day, the temperature reached in the mid 70's, and the fans filled the stands to support their Bulldogs.

The festivities began at 1:00 p.m. with a parade down Main Street. Almost exactly one hour later came the kickoff of the football game, which began with a roar of enthusiasm. The Bulldogs couldn't quite pull this one off, but they sure put up a good fight against the Wes Del Warriors.

The big event included a halftime presentation of e class's float, the queen candidates, and the court being raded around the track. Coordinated by the Student Council, the Halloween Caral's main purpose was to help the classes and organizans make money. The biggest money-maker this year was Senior Spook House. Coming in at second was the eighth and basketball throw.

Seniors Andy Brow and Jama Hackleman were chosen ig and queen of the Halloween Carnival. To end out the ening, Mr. Pike gave away the door prizes, which were tished by the merchants in the area.

Money Earned Is Money Spent

The students at Lapel High School were not only involve in school activities, but they were also involved in activitie outside the school. There were many things to do for ente tainment, such as attending concerts, movies, and going or for pizza. Some people who enjoy dancing often went to the Junction, which is a dance that is held every Friday night at the Y.M.C.A.

Participating in a sport is an extracurricular activity of very many of the students at Lapel. These sports range from cross country, football, and volleyball to basketball and wrestling, and to end out the year there was track, golf, and baseball.

Because of the small size of our school, most students participated in more than one sport during the year. These students were constantly on the go throughout the whole year.

Sporting events not only provided fun and satisfaction for the participants, but they also provided evenings of entertainment for the spectators. Thrill and excitement in sports is what the people in Lapel looked for and it wasn't too difficult for them to find. Sportsminded or not, the sports at Lapel suited everyone just fine.

Records Don't Tell The Story

The varsity football team had a two win, eight loss season; however, that does not tell the whole story of the football

There were twenty-eight young men who started practicing in August for a grueling ten game schedule. They ran, tackled, did push ups as well as sit ups, and several other drills to toughen themselves. Then after such preparation, the season began.

The first three games were on the loss side. This brought Channel 6 newscaster, Brian Hammonds, to Lapel to interview the team and coaches to find out why a team with a twenty-eight game losing streak received such enthusiastic support from the student body, parents, and community.

When the Bulldogs broke the longest losing streak, the retion of the fans was as if Lapel had won the state champio ship. The television crew returned to capture the spirit of t Bulldogs first win. This is why records of wins and los don't tell the whole story.

Statistics about the team include the following: Bob McClintock led the Bulldogs in scoring with 19 points; Ma Boyll was the leader in rushing; John Stinson had the m pass receptions and interceptions; both Stinson and Ric Pickett were named to the All-County squads; while T Maxey, Stinson, Pickett, and Paul Cecil were named to All-Conference team.

Bright Light For The Future

The junior high football team is the bright light for to future of football at Lapel. This is a group of young play who got a start with the Little League football. It proves the practice leads to perfect.

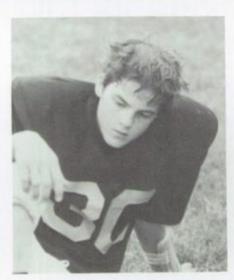

This team boasts a record of four wins, one loss, and of tie. The outstanding victory was the 20-8 win over the arch val Frankton. The loss was to Hamilton S.E. which was largest squad that the team faced.

Some of the outstanding players to keep an eye on David White, Jim Weeks, Phil Meredith.

However, it was the team effort and the persistant work Coaches Shepard and Schuler that gave his team a winn season.

Home Court Advantage

The Varsity Bulldogs got a pretty good start in their 1981-82 season. Being victorious in four of the first five games proved this fact. Lapel had the home-court advantage for these five games, losing only to Highland in the second game.

Victories did not come so easy when the Bulldogs went on the road. The majority of the games lost were away games. "Up and down" were the words to describe this season. With a win here and a loss there, one could never tell what the Bulldogs would do.

A high point of the season was the 44-37 win over Frankton, our corporation and conference rival. The boys were fired up and played well at this game.

Consisting of six seniors, two juniors, and one sophomore, the Varsity Bulldogs ended their season with 10 wins, and 10 losses. The 1982 Bulldog team left its mark as it became a part of "Hoosier Hysteria."

More Than A Game

Girls Basketball is becoming more popular with Lapel each year. This support really helps the girls "get up" their games.

Although the girls varsity basketball team didn't mana winning season this year, they did manage several games. Their season ended with seven wins and eleven lo

Along with playing basketball, the girls also develop special closeness towards each other, which helped the t through difficult times. Being close friends with one and contributed to the squad's teamwork also.

Lapel played Alexandria in the Sectional this year. A two postponements caused by snow, they finally got to the game, but the Bulldogs were not victorious as Alexar won 45-39.

Hustling Back and Forth

he reserve basketball team had a year full of enthusiasm hustle. Why was this true? The team knew that there d be five seniors graduating, and those five would have replaced by the reserve players.

te team learned new offensive and defensive techniques. enabled them to end with a 9-8 record.

le junior high team learned and practiced the basics of etball. Being one of the youngest groups in basketball at that these girls had to practice at Jackson, the church, the school gymnasium early on Saturday mornings. r games had to be scheduled around all of the other es, and snow cancelled some of their games.

rough all of these problems, the girls were sincere and est in their practices and games. Next year they will up to reserve.

Setting Records; Receiving Honors

Pin to Win was the Bulldog battle cry this season, and pin they did. The Bulldog grapplers set new records this year in several departments: team pins, individual records, and overall records. This year's grapplers scored 54 pins against their opponents while finishing with an overall record of six wins, seven losses, and one tie. Senior leader, Todd Snyder, participated in the Semi-State level of the State Wrestling Tourney series and gained the new school individual record of 26 wins and one loss.

The Bulldog baseball team won eight games and lost nine last year. The unpredictable weather played a big part in spring season, allowing only one home game before the s tional tourney. The early loss of pitcher Mike Boyll also pu cramp in the team's play. The Bulldogs still managed to pla Kenny Welch and Rick Benefiel on the All-Conference tea

Striving For High Goals

The last two seasons have been difficult for the boys' track team. The big problem was that the students were so drawn out with so many sports that few came out for track.

Track has been a sport which helps the participants keep in shape for the other sports. The running builds up their stamina and instills in each runner the desire to do his best.

Brian Williams was the outstanding member of this year's track team. He went to the sectional and placed 16th. Next year there will be a few more veteran runners to challenge Brian.

Lapel Girls On The Track To Success

This year's girls' track season turned out to be the best one ever. The team had a record of seven wins and six losses.

Placing second in the WRC was one success for the girls. Three individual conference champs in the WRC were Shelly Mills, 100M; Teresa Green, 800M; and Janey Muse, Kathy Andreatta, Deanna Hoomer, and Amy Roberts, 1600M relay.

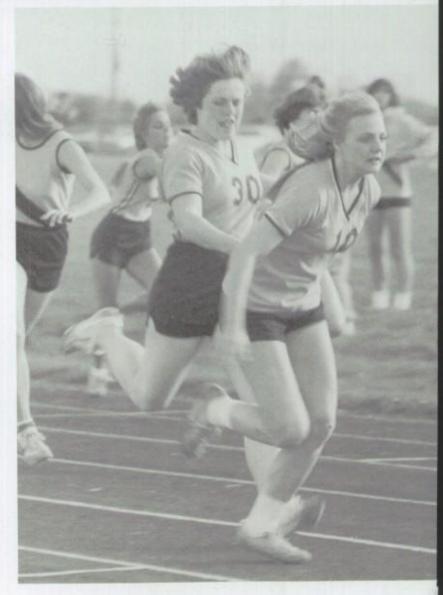

Another success of the girls' track team was that this ye they took more girls to sectional than in any past season. T 800M and 1600M relay teams went, along with Kathy Sp gue in the 200M and high jump, Patty Moore in the disc and Shelly Mills in the 100M and 200M. Mills placed high the 100M in the sectional and went on to the regional.

Make An Eagle Or Fly Like One

The cross country team ran hundreds of miles to shape up for the season. Although Coach Fuqua put them through rigorous practices, the team enjoyed running and kept a positive attitude throughout the season.

The team ended with a winning season of 25-8 with Brian Williams leading the way with an undefeated dual meet record. Being their first year in the Big Blue River Conference, the team brought home a commendable first place, again with Williams leading the victory. The last year for the White River Conference was left with a second place win.

The entire team had a lot of fun and worked really hard. With most of the top runners returning next year, the prospective team looks promising.

Brian Williams ended the season with a sixth place in the sectional, as well as an eighth place regional finish. He went on to run a respectable fortieth in the semi-state.

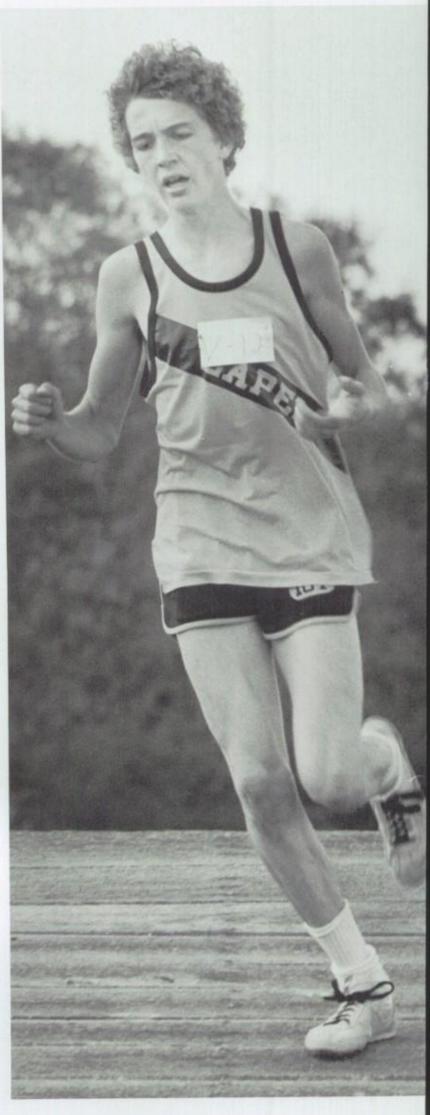

Golf coach, Joe Shepard, finished his first season very well as the team posted an 11-5 record and won their thrid straight WRC championship. Named to All-Conference were Doug Banning, Rob Kirchenbauer, and Ron Nunes. The Bulldogs finished the season by placing eighth in the sectional with a score of 332.

Building on Basics

Learning the basic skills of basketball, such as dribbling, passing, and shooting was the main purpose of the fifth and sixth grade basketball teams. The games were always exciting for these boys because they gave them the thrill of competion. The boys also had to learn the rules of the game. For if they didn't, they found out pretty quickly when the referee noticed their mistakes. Playing basketball at this young age is the first step up to the varsity level

Suits Anyone's Interests

Whether it's foreign languages, art, homemaking, or farming, there is a club at Lapel to suit anyone's interest. The purpose of these organizations is to raise money to help promote the special interests of each one.

Selling items out of the Tom Watt kits was an activity of all the clubs in the high school. Clubs spent this money in various ways. For example, the French Club dined at La Tour, a French restaurant, and the Art Club traveled to Brown County.

Another annual fund raiser of the clubs was the Halloween Carnival. Each organization set up booths at which they sold items that had something to do with the nature of the clubs, or was interesting enough to catch the eye of passersby.

Bilingual Opportunities

The French Club got off to a great start this year. During first semester they had a rummage boutique booth at the Halloween Carnival and had their annual French Club Christmas exchange and party. The club also traveled to downtown Indianapolis to dine at the French restaurant "La Tour" during both the Christmas and Spring seasons. There students sampled delicious French delicacies.

During the school year, a unique group of people walked through the halls of the school — the slaves. Latin Club members had a chance at the annual slave auction to purchase the services of others; in other words, make slaves of the new members. Prices ranged anywhere from twenty-five cents to three dollars. Masters provided their slaves with crowns of leaves, togas, clever signs, and collars. Requirements of the enslaved included carrying their masters books to their classroom, making sure their lunch was waiting for them on the table, and even singing cute little songs in the hallway. Many preferred being enslaved to translating in Latin class.

The Spanish Club had an exciting and productive year. The new sponsor Mr. Jerry Shepard helped the club in several of their activities. They "ate out" Mexican style at the Chi Chi's restaurant in February and sponsored an elephant ear stand at the carnival.

Spirit Boosters

With Brenda Mills and Patty Huntzinger as sponsors, the erleaders and the pep club boosted the spirit of the stut body at Lapel.

The 70 members of pep club attended all games, dressed in form, except for three of the away games. Jill Jarrett, sident, did her best to keep the pep club organized oughout the season. The spirit at Lapel wouldn't be the ne without the pep club.

Practicing two times a week, planning pep sessions, perting yells, and going to camp were some of the activities of cheerleaders. Both varsity and reserve cheerleaders atded camp and brought back many new cheers. The varsity ad sold M & M's and candy bars to raise money for their v outfits. They also participated in a Q-95 cheerleading test and received third place for their Q-95 cheers.

Summation Of Accomplishments

Because this is only its second year, the Letterman's club is still getting started. The club's main purpose is to distinguish the letter winners in the various sports at Lapel. Sponsoring the all-sports banquet in March was an important activity of the club. Buying sweaters and putting out football programs are prospective ideas for next year's club.

The planning and organizing of the yearbook began at the end of the 1981 school year as ad sales began and continued throughout the summer months. The funding of the yearbook came in the form of the advertisements, boosters, and the yearbook sales, which were begun in mid-October with the use of the p.a. system and a little help from Chicago, Barbara Streisand, and Linda Ronstadt.

As the year progressed, the yearbook staff learned the meaning of deadline and the work that actually went into the production of the yearbook. Upon deciding the theme and design for the cover, the staff, with the advice of Miss Lucille Rockey, began working on the inside to create a new look with fresh ideas and features. The sacrifices brought rewards as the book began to take shape. Before the staff realized, the deadlines had passed and the production of the '82 Bulldog was underway.

Running errands, answering phone calls, tracking down missing students, and delivering messages are just a few the numerous tasks performed each day by the office worke at Lapel High School. Senior and junior girls have fir choice as workers, but some sophomores also work in the various offices.

The girls in Mr. Kemerly's office pick up all the attedance slips and type out the absence sheet. The girls in t front office deliver messages and run off lots and lots copies. The guidance office workers do a lot of typing th needs to be done, and the girls in Mr. Hunter's office ty contracts, answer calls, and many other jobs as well. So you can see, there are many responsibilities to be had a these girls help to keep the atmosphere of the offices "runing smoothly." #### Advantages and Disadvantages

Everyone's heard of the I.H. "Marching 100", right? ell, this year's concert choir was the "Singing 100" plus 1! e largest choir ever here at Lapel had both its advantages disadvantages. With this many members a greater sound lid be achieved and there were more students to help raise ds; trying to buy enough copies of music for everyone ned out to be rather expensive, and due to a smaller choir the past years, new robes had to be bought for extra mbers.

Concert choir met each day for 55 minutes. The choir's t performance was at the Community Thanksgiving Sere. The choir also performed in the Christmas and Spring certs. The big performance of the year was the Madison anty Choral Festival, which Lapel hosted this year. Area ools participated in the Choral Festival, which was held at derson College.

The 101 members were directed by Jeannine Terhune. She assisted by Brent Manly from Anderson College, who doing his student teaching here first semester. In the end, pluses seemed to override the minuses as this year's edit of the L.H.S. concert choir turned out to be one of the

Suits Ability And Needs

At one time in a person's life, he has more than likely been asked "What do you want to be when you grow up?" At Lapel, no matter what a student's interests may be, he is provided with classes that suit his ability and needs.

General courses, which teach the basics, are offered as well as advanced courses, which probe a little deeper and become more involved. The itinerary offered at Lapel includes courses in art, agriculture, business, home economics, health and physical education, industrial arts, languages, math, music, science, and social studies.

Even though a student may not leave Lapel High School knowing exactly what he wants to be, he at least has had an opportunity to explore a variety of areas through academic study. He can then pursue the vocation that best suits him.

Lapel-It suits us just fine . .

ACADEMICS

More Than Just Grammar

Even though the students at Lapel have spoken the English language for most of their lives, each year the proper usage and writing of the language must be taught and reviewed. This past year not only did the students learn about sentence structure, but they also studied other areas of grammar as well as vocabulary and literature. Through the English classes, students also learned about prominent authors and poets as they read their work.

Another method of learning was the use of video tapes which enabled the students to supplement their learning and also aided in the better understanding of the material covered. The learning did not take place only in the classroom. The college English class, composed of mainly college bound seniors, went to the Indiana Reperatory Theatre, where they saw the production of the Shakespearean play, Hamlet.

Language Expresses Culture

here are several benefits to be derived from the study of a ign language. On a practical level, this study can lead to increased understanding of English itself, due to the wledge of foreign words and their derivatives.

n a much broader scale, language is at the very heart of a ble's culture and is in turn a vital expression of that ure. Studying a language can therefore lead to a heightawareness of other people, their culture, and their tradis, which as a consequence, may be a conduit to greater erstanding of those people and their mores.

today's world, many American companies do business foreign firms. Unfortunately, there is a serious deficit of ble who are fluent in any foreign language. So an increasneed for interpreters and translators does exist.

vailable to students at Lapel High School are two years atin, two years of French and three years of Spanish.

The math department, with five full or part-time teache offers a wide range of courses for the Lapel student. On to junior-high level the courses present the basics, as well introductions to metrics, algebra, and geometry. On the his school level six courses are offered. From the basic cour which emphasizes the fundamentals of addition, subtraction multiplication, and division, to courses in analytic geome and pre-calculus, the student is presented a wide range mathematics. These courses are designed to meet the new of students going into the job market after high school as was to those going to college. With this mathematics ba ground, Lapel graduates can successfully compete in the chosen vocation.

Future Einsteins?

Science is an adventure of the whole human race to learn to live in and perhaps to love the universe in which they are. To be a part of it is to understand oneself, to begin to feel that there is a capacity within man far beyond what he felt he had, of an infinitive extension of human possibilities . . .

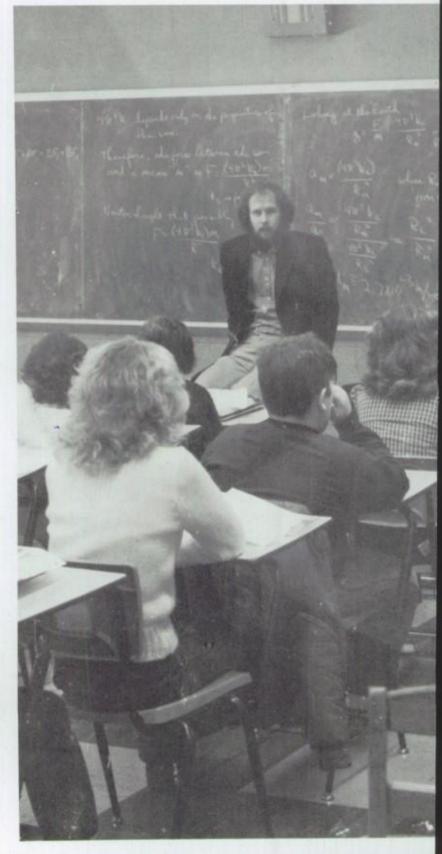

I propose that science be taught at whatever level, from the lowest to the highest, in the humanistic way. It should be taught with a certain historical understanding, with a certain philosophical understanding, with a Social understanding and a human understanding in the sense of the biography, the nature of the people who made this construction, the triumphs, the trials, the tribulations.

People and Events Explored

Kaddafi, Walesa, Libya, Solidarity, Reganauts, and Reganomics were terms heard and discussed in the government and sociology classes. These events, people, and happenings gave students the opportunity to study governments that were not in the same form as their own democratic government. They studied the personality and character of the influential people and how they affected their societies.

In psychology students studied the behavior, personality, and sometimes the disorders of people. The students were able to probe deeper into the workings of people and their enviornment.

Junior high students studied a combination of Indiana history and world geography. The juniors explored their heritage through American history. These studies provide a solid study for government and sociology.

Field trips highlighted the learning as students traveled to the Indian Museum, Conner Prairie Settlement, and the General Assembly at the State House. Many students were active in serving as pages at the assembly and participating in the primary election.

How And Why To Exercise

Learning how the human body functions and then learning v to keep it functioning properly are the basic teachings of ilth and physical education. Health and physical educan are required courses for junior high students, as well as shmen and sophomores. In health, the students study the vsical, mental, and social well-being. They are involved in ding out more about themselves and their environment. The students not only do calisthenics in physical education ss. They also learn the rules and regulations of several rts, as well as try to develop their skills in each of these usic at Lapel School is a complete experience. Seldom do r subjects teach you what to do and how to do it, and then y you to complete the cycle.

Performance Is The Ultimate Goal

music classes at all grade levels, students are given a ce to perform. Performance is the ultimate goal of a cian. In the Lapel music department, several groups orm year round, regardless of summer break. The Swing r and the Marching Bulldog Band perform constantly in and year out. Other groups have their moment in the s also; the concert choir, Jr. High choir, Jr. High Band, entary band, and all elementary classes. The excitement usic is performing and Lapel takes a back seat to no one is department.

e main hall bulletin board told us that there was a lot happening in art. Every two weeks the board was full of the achievements of the classes from junior high up through Art IV.

The junior high classes made papier mache mobiles, and construction paper design drawings. They worked with zone point perspective, shadowing, and painting with color wheel. The more advanced classes, Art I and II, used 2 dimensional and 3 dimensional drawings. They also drew faces, scenery, and still lifes. Sculpturing was another area that the art students explored. The Art III students were assigned mostly three dimensional projects. All other areas were very advanced such as weaving, coiling, and airbrush painting on canvas.

One Little Happy Family

Even though we do not have the large variety of people that other schools have, Lapel High School's people suit us perfectly. Lapel has many outstanding people in sports, music, art, academics, and faculty to name just a few. No matter what you are into, you are always accepted and supported by everyone. At Lapel, we are just one little happy family; loving, caring, and always thinking about each other. We stick together through "thick and thin." When our teams were down, the enthusiasm of the students and faculty pulled them through the hard times. We would like to dedicate the next forty-two pages to the students and faculty who make LHS what it is!

Lapel — It suits us just fine . .

Not Just A Job

The fifty-four regular faculty members, the two special education teachers, and the teachers' aid truly enjoy teaching at Lapel. The faculty had only two changes this term, one because of a retirement and the other because of a family move.

The teachers work with their students in the classrooms as well as helping in extracurricular activities. They serve as sponsors for classes and clubs. They also are involved with the ticket sales for all sports events and many other school gatherings.

Lapel School has a small enrollment which allows the teachers to have a close relationship with the pupils. The fact that there are few turn-overs means that there is harmony among the teachers, students, and parents.

What a Porker!

ou've heard the phrase "big as a hog" before, but this pel area resident personifies the cliche. Funk tips the les at 850 pounds, but at showtime weighs as much as 95 pounds.

funk is a Duroc hog owned by Harold and Sharon McDerof Lapel. They say he's the world's biggest hog, and Funk credits to prove their claim. He's won honor as the ld's largest hog for the past six years.

Vhat does a four foot tall, 1,095 pound hog eat? The ious answer might be "anything he wants", but the truth x pounds of feed a day . . . in the off season. When Funk s back into training to win his seventh title as the world's test hog, the McDermits will increase his dinner plate to pounds of feed a day.

he McDermits say that's not an unusual amount of feed an animal the size of Funk. So he really isn't making a pig imself.

Ending For A New Beginning

Being seniors, who were finally graduating after twelve years of school was great. There was also a sad side to being seniors. As they looked back at all the good times they had experienced, some wanted to stay a little longer. But life had to go on, and they had to part with their high school years.

High school began when the members of the class of '82 were freshmen. They thought, "Oh Wow! Isn't it great being in high school?" With their freshman year came the choosing of class colors, the buying of class jackets, and the building of their first float.

They took a step up in the world. No more "bottom of the bowl" treatment for them. They were sophomores. During their sophomore year, they ordered class rings and sold magazines. The class of '82 raised the most money of all classes in the history of sophomore magazine sales at Lapel High School.

Juniors! That really sounded old, and status was gained in school life. The building of a second place float, planning of the prom, selling popcorn and participating in the powder puff football game were some of their activities.

Last, but definitely not least, came the "big" senior year. Along with planning graduation exercises, the seniors ordered senior keys, announcements, and caps and gowns. All of the high school activities and many activities outside of school made this part of these student's life a rewarding experience, which will always be remembered.

It's All For The Best

It is said that the best things in life are free, but you couldn't have convinced a senior of that. The senior year turned out to be quite an expensive one.

It started with senior pictures. Everyone received his proofs and enjoyed choosing the best ones. The enjoyment lasted until they saw the price list. "Gasp!" Oh well, you're only a high school senior once.

Then there were the college applications and testing fees.

Not much could be done about those, if you wanted to attend college.

Next in line was the ordering of announcements and senior keys. Everyone wanted to graduate in style. The caps and gowns added to the list of expenses. After all, what's money?

The cost of dating must also be tacked on the list. Nobody wanted to be considered "tight."

Finally came the prom. By this stage, spending money was just a way of life. Nobody can argue with the statement, "A senior and his money are soon parted!"

Jama Hackleman has the "preppy"

Dressed To A "P"

This past year foxes, tigers, alligators, penguins, swans, and even fire-breathing dragons could be found roaming the halls of Lapel School on any given day. Had the school been turned into a zoo? Of course it hadn't. These were the trademarks for the "preppy" designer fashions.

These marks of distinction were found on cardigans, polo shirts, pullover sweaters, jeans, and even sport socks. Names of the designers themselves also appeared on the derrieres of many blue jeans. Other articles of the "preppy" rage were the boat shoes, the returning popular penny loafers and the never-before-seen duck shoes. Even sneakers had to be one of the more popular brands like NIKE, Addidas, Converse, or Pony. It was even better if they were laced with the new illustrated shoestrings.

There was one drawback to all of these new looks. They seemed to be more expensive than the regular attire. This brought about the "but Mom, everyone is wearing them" syndrome, which was used by many youngsters to convince their parents that there was nothing wrong with spending $50 for a pair of designer jeans.

— Cruisin'

Cruisin'

Whether it's after school, after a ballgame, or just any night of the week, young people can be seen in their cars cruisin' Main Street. Driving down the "strip" in your very own car (Dad's will do also) and waving at all your buddies has become one of the most "in" things to do around Lapel.

Cruising isn't just all driving and waving though. Things can get a little crazy once in a while. This includes an occasional game of chicken or having a Chinese fire drill. Sometimes traffic is blocked up because of two friends stopping in the road to have a short chitchat.

Monday Blues

Another Monday was already upon him. The weekend ure went fast. As he rolled out of bed at 6:00 a.m., he ealized that he hadn't done his homework. That was enough make his Monday blue, but that was only the beginning. First hour, the English test that he had taken last Friday as handed back. He thought he had done really well, but it urned out that he bombed it! Second hour he somehow got aught in an argument between his two best friends. During third hour, the teacher gave a pop quiz over an assignment he didn't read. He hung on to the thought of a good lunch. Well guess again! The cafeteria served goulash. He slept through fifth hour. Sixth hour was definitely not a bright point. The teacher gave a test over the chapter he never did understand. The only thought entering his mind was, "I sure hope Friday gets here soon!"

The Quarter Craze

What held people in such a fascination that they pumped quarters into a machine time and time again? You guessed it — Video Games!

 Video Gamés! The most popular ones are, Space Invaders, Asteroids, Gorf, and the ever-popular Pac-Man.

Space Invaders involves using manuvering skills and dodging abilities to shoot the invaders and keep them from landing on earth. Pac-Man involves working your way through a maze and eating little dots to score.

At first these games could only be found in various arcades. Now these games can be found in grocery stores, skating rinks, pizza parlors and even homes. The question is where will they invade next!

Telephone

"Hi! Is Debbie there?"

"This is Debbie."

"It's Jill. What are you doing?"

"Oh nothing much, I just finished watching "General Hospital," and I was trying to find something to munch on while I do my homework. How 'bout you?"

"Not much. I just wanted to call and see what you're wearing to school tomorrow."

"I don't know, what are you wearing?"

"I'll probably wear my designer jeans and oxford with my duck shoes."

"Yeah, that sounds good. I'll probably wear the same."

"Well, I have to go now. I can't stay on the phone too long or Mom and Dad get real uptight."

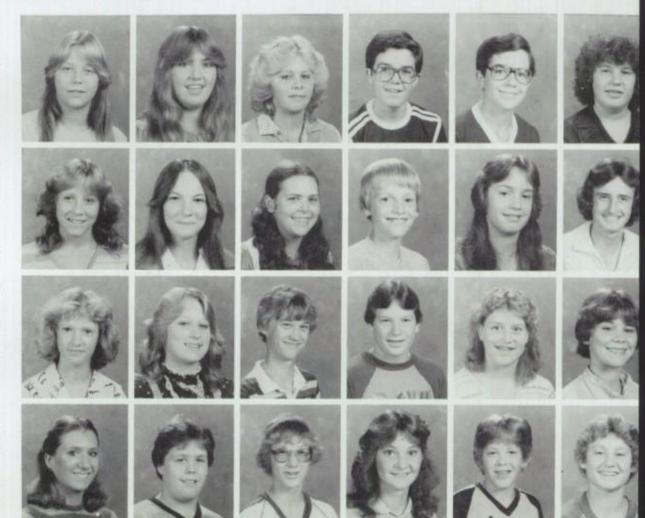

"Yeah mine do too. Well, see you tomorrow. Good-bye."

What a Change!

Going to junior high was a big challenge to many seventh graders this year. They had to make many changes in their school lifestyle. No more recesses or staying in one classroom all day like in the elementary grades. The new junior high students had to get used to changing classes every hour and having a different teacher for each class. Usually, that meant more homework!

Also, seventh graders became more interested in romances. They didn't want someone for just a week. They were more interested in "going with" someone for several weeks or even months.

Seventh graders then had to cope with being the ones with less seniority in the hall and at convocations. Now, they were the ones looking up to everyone else.

Rubik's Cube

Kelly Hettinga tries a Rubik's cube

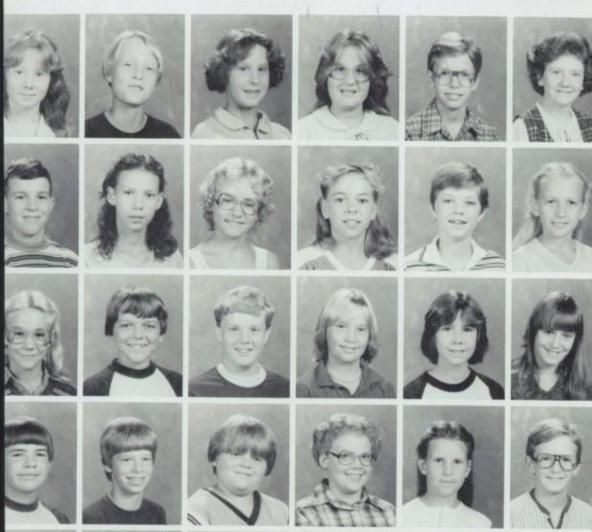

That fabulous mental toy, Rubik's Cube, has sold far into he millions and continues to sweep the nation. Invented by Erno Rubik, a Hungarian professor of architecture and inteior design, Rubik's Cube (justly named) is a complicated, inique mind-bogglig puzzle in a cube shape.

Consisting of six colors and six sides, the object is to make ach side one solid color. At first it may sound easy; however, here are three million combinations only one of which is correct. This task may take one hour, days, weeks, or even nonths to complete. The secret is not to give up.

By making only one side a solid color, you can be a star. By naking two adjacent sides a solid color, you can be an expert. To master the ultimate challenge, making all six sides a solid olor, puts you in the ranks of the elite, the cubists of today nd the future.

Writing Brings Joy

The fifth graders in Mrs. Arrick's reading class made a collection of their own stories and wrote them in a vocabulary which would have meaning to a kindergarten child. These stories were written and put into a "booklet" form.

Then came the covers! What kind of cover would a young child like? What color should it be? Well, the creative fifth graders came up with the kind of covers which would appeal to anyone. They're made with cloth; not just a plain cloth, it was cloth which was fashioned in the shape of teddy-bears, Raggedy-Anns and various animal shapes. The special part of this project was that the booklets were done for someone else. These attractive books were presented to the kindergarten students as Christmas presents.

Fourth graders intently study their Indiana History.

Hoosier Heritage

The fourth grade had many new learning experiences thi year. The study of Indiana History was one of these, and the students were involved in many activities of bring this history alive.

First, they made Indian and pioneer tools and utensils. Then these were put to use as the students prepared as authentic "pioneer" meal for lunch. This was a fun, all-day event.

Later in the year these students went to the Indiana Stat Museum. They also visited Lockerbie Square where the toured the home of James Whitcomb Riley and saw many of the stories which they had read. The last trip was to the Conner Prairie settlement. All of the pioneer crafts, foods dress, and homes were there. Here the fourth graders learne and witnessed their Hoosier Heritage.

These experiences enabled the students to see the past as actually was in the mid-1800's. Through participating i these activities, the students got a taste of "pioneer" life an realized the many hardships that the early settlers faced These events made Indiana History an important part of th fourth grade.

One Big Happy Family

A special feature in Mrs. Davis' third grade class was the daily "family meetings." Each day the students would meet in a circle and discuss things that were important to them. They would talk about world events, their own problems, and special things that interested them. These meetings helped to give the student an attitude of understanding and acceptance in their classroom "family."

Each week they chose a "Student of the Week." During this week, the student has special privileges, which included a corner of the room to display his own special pictures and things. Each student had this honor once during the year.

They also studied communities in social studies and they started with Lapel. This included the history of Lapel in which they discovered that the community got its name be cause of the shape of the land when it was organized. I looked like a "lapel" on a coat.

Holiday Preparations

Whether it was Winter, or Spring, Thanksgiving or Easter, the halls of the elementary classes at Lapel School always reflected the mood of the season. During the Fall months, witches, pumpkins, goblins, Pilgrims, and turkeys decorated the walls. As the weather outside grew colder, inside snowflakes of all shapes and sizes hung from the ceiling. In the Spring, various flowers bloomed all along the hallway.

The specialty of these decorations was that they were made by the students thmselves in both art class and their individual class. Each student's creativity transformed the simple decorations into his own small works of art.

Bookmobile, Not Batmobile

Best described as a library on wheels, the Bookmobile arrives on a regular schedule at Lapel School. This service provided the first graders with an opportunity to explore and choose a book that interests them.

The librarians assist the students and point out specific sections from which to choose. They spend about fifteen minutes browsing before they make their final decision. After checking their books out, the first graders become responsible for the book, which must be returned the next time the Bookmobile comes, which is the fourth Tuesday of each month.

K Is For Kindergarten

Remembering that A is for apple, B is for boy, and C is for cat was only one of the things that these kindergarteners learned this year. Sitting quietly, talking only when called upon, and working and playing with others were some of the other tasks that faced these new students.

A highlight of the school year for the kindergarteners was to dress up in their comical and spooky Halloween costumes and parade throughout the school. They also learned about the meaning of Thanksgiving and celebrated with their own feast.

The kindergarteners journeyed to the Lapel fire station in the Spring and also toured the public library. These experiences enable these students to become better acquainted with their community and gain a better understanding of the services they provide.

Adding The Finishing Touche

Schools need principals, teachers, and students to exist be who adds the finishing touches? Everyone knows that school system would be nowhere without the bus drivers, tocoks, and the janitors.

The bus drivers bring the students to school everydates despite rain, cold, or snow. Almost fifty percent of the students ride a bus, so shoool could not function without the b drivers.

Long before the students arrive, the cooks are here prepare a well-balanced lunch. Over eleven hundred student go through the lunch line from eleven a.m. through twelve thirty p.m. and get the energy to function properly.

Certainly not least among this group are the janitors. The work hard to keep the school building clean. A clean building benefits everyone. It is much easier to work, study, and lead in clean surroundings.

Indebted Unto You

The theme, "Lapel, It Suits Us Just Fine . . . " seemed to be the rule of the businesses and their association with the school this year. The people of Lapel and the school worked hand-in-hand, each supporting the other.

Inflation affected the production of yearbooks, as well as all other facets in the economy. The total funds involved in the production of the book were a result of the sponsorship of the Lapel business community, as well as surrounding areas. The involvement of the loyal businesses, which helped to make this publication possible, was sincerely appreciated by the yearbook staff and school community.

Continuing To Suit Ourselves

ays continued to suit themselves. They did this through ing goals for themselves and then working toward evement. Reaching their own expectations gave them a ing of success. Many set even higher goals.

would be presumptuous to think that these goals were ays achieved through the efforts of one individual. Many ed important roles in the accomplishments at Lapel. The ents and faculty worked together for shared recognition everal aspects of school life.

o one found an empty cause. Reason was the significant abone to the course of life this year at Lapel. The action carried throughout the year as the people continued to themselves.

miss Rockey
To a very nice lady. We man & I had son on the As the school year progressed, anticipation of things yet to come turned into memories of things that came to pass.

Trip. good lock Students faced new challenges at the beginning of the pass.

Some gained prestige while others were just learning what it was all about.

Many new and rewarding experiences greeted the students throughout their time at Lapel. The students found that each contributed to the history that made this past year so special. Lapel captured the attention of people throughout Indiana as outsiders realized that even the state's longest losing streak couldn't take the spirit and enthusiasm from the Bulldog players and fans. It was the citizens of the community and school that brought Channel 6 coverage to Lapel, not the losing streak. The incident served as more proof of how Lapel suits the people.

Time has run out on the 81-82 school calendar. As all good things must come to an end, so must the 1982 Bulldog wrap up the year's activities.
